6.1.2 The effective leadership is visible in various institutional practices such as decentralization and participative management.

1. The institution focuses on decentralization and leadership at department levels and process levels. As far as every department is concerned, the respective HOD takes full responsibility to make his/her department one of the best in the institution by developing new plans and strategies related to academic and non-academic activities and the effective implementation of the same. HoDs discuss with the respective staff members in developing such plans and assign responsibilities to them for effective execution. To bring in contemporary practices in the industry, the departments regularly organize webinars and off-line interactions in which industry experts interact with the students on recent developments in practices in different industries and domains. It helps in bridging the gap in the curriculum and industry practices. Departments also organize webinars and offline interactions in which academic experts interact with students on recent developments in different domains. This helps students to acquire knowledge on recent developments in both industry and academic.
2. Regarding participative management, periodical HODs meeting with the respected Principal is organized to discuss about making the teaching-learning process effective, adopting effective teaching methodologies and developing and implementing strategies for student's progression and development. The inputs given by staff members are taken into account for decision-making regarding the same. The collective decision-making process gives room for new ideas for improving the teaching-learning process and helps in removing shortfalls. Departments do collaborate in organizing webinars, FDPs and other academic programs with each other which bring in synergies and better outcomes. Periodical department-level meetings help bring about new ideas and strategies with respect to teaching methodologies, which are implemented further so that the students are more benefited. Periodical meetings with various committees and centers like R&D
